The Switzer of Berne, contains the following account of the sitting of the Swiss Diet of the 18th:

"All the Deputies were present. Nothwithstanding the unforeasen death of his son, M. Courten, First Deputy for the Valais, was in his seat. The First Deputy for Neutenhale seemed to accost eagerly several other Deputies, and to be ready to give an embrace to the First Deputy of Vaud, M. Druey.

The Deputies of Sonderbund, particularly M. B. Meier from Lucerne, had dull and thoughtful countenances. Count Reichart, the first Secretary of the French Embassy, was in the public gallery. As we foreasw, no diplomatic note was given to day to the Vorort. The order of the day was the discussion of the means for earrying into execution the vote of the Diet come to on July 20. The Deputy for Zurich opened the debate by proposing means of pacifications stready spoken of, viz: a proclamation addressed to the people of the seven Cantons, the sending of two Federal Commissioners into each of the soven Cantons, and that the Committee should as soon as possible make propositions to this effect. The Deputles of the Sonderhund have not so yet made sup yrotest. Lucerne moved that the propositions should be lithographed and distributed to the Deputies.

All the Deputles of the majority supported the propositions the Zurich. The movet transkable feature of the stuing was a proposition by Bale Town for the appointment of a committee of members of the minority to treat with the majority on the question; but without deferring the execution of the supported the propositions of the Zurich. THE IRISH BANISHED TO CANADA BY THEIR CRUEL LANDLORDS—On this subject the London Times expresses the following optoion: "The population of British North America in 1844 was 1851 241. Before the close of this present year nearly 100,000 persons, emounting to a twentieth of the existing population, will have arrived in the St. Lawrence, almost entirely from ireland, instead of that enormous immigration representing in sny degree whatever the wealth, the education, the rank, the habits, the loyalty, and the whole character of the mother country, they are to a man from the lower orders of Ireland. They represent, they carry with them misery and degradation, a visionary temperament and a factious religion, a deep sense of leginy and a burning haired of the British name. Centuries will not efface from their vindicitive memories and their inventive imaginations the dark circumstances of their banishment, their passage, their isoding their dispersion over the inhospitable wild. Such is British colonization. What else is to be expected than a demoralized and disaffected population, a lesi colony, and an aggrandined rivel? And whom have we to thank for these inevitable results?

Symptoms of Deax—The Loudon Daily News of Oct. 7 informs us that "a noble Duke negotiating with a ship-waver for the transfer of so many human beingsto a distant land, endeavored to best down the price, by suggesting several articles as substitutes for erdinary food of so inferior a character that the ship-owner docined the arrangement.

The London Standard states that, on information that a noble Duke had smuggled a large quantity of French brandly, an article on which several dollars duty per gallen are payable. Mr. Price. man and woman whom it was alleged he had thus treated, he could show by them that the story was not correct.

By and-by this man and woman were found and were brought before the Mayor, when they confirmed the story of the boarding house keeper in every particular—the woman and man both awearing that her watch, two gold chains, gold ear-rings, gold pencil-case, &c. had been taken as security for the payment of $100 by the man, upon payment of which the articles were to be returned to her.

The woman also stated, in addition, that about a week after the occurrence, she saw Burley in the Park Theatre, when she asked him for her things, and he told her that she should have them when her companion fulfilled his agreement; while Burley had previously protested that he had never seen the woman after seeing her at the boarding house referred to.

At this state of the case a postponement was asked for and obtained by Burley, and when they next appeared he was accompanied by two legal advisers, who contended that flurley having been tried once for this offerce, he could not to tried again for it. It also sypeared that the articles which had been taken had been returned to the man in the meanwhile through the Postodiles. A farther adjournment was then made, and the Major having obtained the advice of counsel, was told that he could proceed in the mater notwithstanding the protests of Burley's legal advisers, but inasmach as the man who had been arrested proved to be a convicted thief, and consequently could not give legal testimony, and in view of the fact that Burnett had been ordered to patrol duty, he concluded in consequence of the impure source of the testimony against the officer, not to take farther action thereon.
